DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 2/22/2010 have been fully considered but the argument about the 35 USC 101 rejection is not persuasive.
2. Applicant argues, see page 2 of the remark, "a skilled artisan would reasonably understand that Applicant's 'computer readable medium' is not a signal."
3. "In the start of the art, transitory signals are commonplace as a medium for transmitting computer instruction and thus, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary and give the broadest reasonable interpretation, the scope of a "computer readable medium' covers a signal per se."

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

4. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because claim is directed to non-statutory subject matter.

For claim 10, "In the start of the art, transitory signals are commonplace as a medium for transmitting computer instruction and thus, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary and give the broadest reasonable interpretation, the scope of a "computer readable medium' covers a signal per se." In order to overcome the 35 U.S.C. 101 rejection, the "computer readable medium" should be changed to "non-transitory computer readable medium".

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 1-4, 6, 8-9 and 11 are allowed.
